

A note to our future voters

The phrase “Think Globally, Act Locally” has been around for many years now but it does very much apply to the world we live in today. The most effective way to influence the world around you is to start in your own back yard.

As a high school junior or senior you have the opportunity to participate in the electoral process in your own city through the Colorado Student Election Judges Program. Election Judges are needed at every election to assist voters at the polls and to help process ballots. This exciting opportunity provides students the chance to learn about democracy by participating in the process at the grass roots level and be paid for their time.

Spend this Election Day, 2007 taking an active roll in democracy and the development your future.
